JOHN HOLLAND, a constable from the Sixth Ward, was arraigned in the Police Court this morning charged with converting to his own use some thirty-five odd dollars of a $90 judgment which he had collected for one J. L. Martin. After the evidence in the case had been heard, the court maintained the charge, but suspended the execution of the sentence until Friday, in order to let him pay over the $35 in that time.

The Work-house Board held a meeting yesterday and dismissed Hiram Green, Geo. Egner, John Sturgent and Michael Regans, on the ground of good behavior and unnecessary long sentence. The annual report was read, showing the receipts of the year to have been $81,057; expenditures, $77,827. The receipts for the labor of the prisoners were about $25,000. Number of prisoners received during the year, 4,767; of which 1,470 were American born; 1,093 Irish, 329 German; 3,094 were white, and 1,081 were black.

OFFICERS MAHONEY and Hilberger yesterday, with the usual success of their undertakings, arrested three men (two colored and one white) named Moses Green, Commodore Perry, and Thomas McDonald, and lodged them in the Ninth-street station, and charged them with stealing a gold watch and chain, a fine set of ladies' jewelry, five sets of surgical instruments, $100 in currency, a new valise, and forty or fifty smaller articles, all valued at $500, belonging to Doctor Emer, residing with his relative, Mr. Greir, the druggist at the corner of Sixth and John streets. As the Police Court this morning, on account of the absence of some important witnesses, the case was continued until February 19th. In default of $500 bail they were committed. Subsequently they were taken before the Chief and vigorously pummeled with cross-questioning in order to elicit some clue as to the whereabouts of the stolen articles, but nothing satisfactory could be obtained. McDonald and Moses Green, however, admitted the theft.

NEWTON J. CARPENTER lives in Booth county, Kentucky. He came to town yesterday on business, and in the afternoon, while walking to the Kentucky Central depot, he was met by a "stranger," who introduced himself as "also going up the road. After some time they were met by a man who claimed to be an express agent. The agent wanted the money for the shipment of the baggage for the stranger, but said to say the stranger had nothing but gold coins. These the express agent, as stated, had no authority to pay any premium on. Accordingly Mr. Carpenter was called upon for a $25, the required amount, and given "the shiners" for security. After a lapse of time the express agent departed, and soon after "the stranger" on some excuse also left. With the gold coin in his pocket Mr. Carpenter felt perfectly secure until he proffered one of them in pay for his ticket. It was then that he realized he had been swindled. He immediately began to search for the "stranger" and the express agent. They state that they think the physiognomy of the parties is known to them.

WOOD'S THEATER.—The first production here of the "Gilded Age," last evening, attracted a very large audience, who, one and all, evinced entire satisfaction with Mr. Mulberry's original and exceedingly humorous impersonation of the celebrated "Col. Mulberry Sellers." The play will be repeated this evening.

The Gospel in its Simplicity.
The Fifth Presbyterian Church was last night crowded to overflowing with people eager to hear Gospel truths told in the attractive manner in which Miss Smiley presents them. Her teachings are the theme of conversion in religious circles throughout the city. At home and by the way one hears her name constantly mentioned. "I never heard the Bible made so plain to me as she makes it," said a lady in a street car last night; and such is the universal testimony. Such simplicity, yet depth; such tenderness, yet power; such kindness, yet earnestness are rarely found in religious teachers. If others would require Miss Smiley's example and profit by it, there would seldom or never be vacant pews in the sanctuary.

To-night at the Ninth street Christian church she will consider "The Duties of Christian Women." A broad theme, but one of which the world has no adequate conception, even in theory, and in practice is lamentably behind the requirements. Gentlemen as well as ladies need to hear the sermon to-night for they are oftentimes the stumbling block to progress.

The Grand Orchestra Concert.
The third grand orchestra concert of the season occurs at Pike's on Thursday evening next. The excellence of the execution of the organization is well known and appreciated in Cincinnati. Board of Improvements.
This Board transacted the following business: Mr. E. T. Carson communicated to the Board that Liberty street, from Dalton avenue to McLean avenue, had never been dedicated to the city; and that in consequence of the street having been laid out, its part owners, John E. Bell and S. J. Broadwell, offered the ground for dedication on condition that the city establish the street and build the sewer without cost to the abutting property-owners. Referred to the Solicitor.

The Elliott-street improvements were recommended to George Barton.
The Clerk, on motion, was instructed to advertise for proposals for 2,000 perches of broken stone and 4.0 of gravel, at a cost of $4,000, for McMillan street.

Adjourned.

Servants as Equals.
An English woman of wealth is trying an experiment in housekeeping, the result of which will be watched with some anxiety by two classes—the housekeepers, and those "anxious and a-miss" class whose condition so touched the great, warm heart of one of the noblest and best of the chief magistrates of this Commonwealth. She had learned what it is to have servant girls of the common class, and like other ladies she had wondered if she would ever be able to get along without them. She saw another, and all over the land, young women of education, needing and desiring employment, idle because they could not obtain it.

Her experiment, successfully carried out, will relieve her and them, or such of them as join in the experiment. She has engaged five of these young ladies respectively as cook, lady's maid, kitchen-maid, dairy-maid and upper house-maid, paying them the wages given to the former incumbents in those positions. When out duty they are treated as equals—as they are—mingle with the guests, and accompany the lady when she rides out. She is better served than she ever was before, and she has about her as companions and friends those to whom she is bound by ties of mutual interest.

There are in this country as in England, thousands of young women who would be willing to take such positions under such circumstances—young women of education, who are willing to work, but are not willing to be treated as menials. And there are thousands of households where employment might be found under the circumstances described, with benefits both to them and to those who should give it. It may be that here there are obstacles in the way that do not exist in England.

There is a possibility, as well as well established, that no risk of a loss of position would be incurred by the lady who should treat such members of her household as equals, but here there is so much social uncertainty, and a place in their particular circle is by many of such uncertain tenure, that ladies are obliged to keep their servants at a distance to avoid the suspicion of familiarity with them. But it is not true here and there that almost every lady knows, within the circle of her acquaintance, young women who need homes, and to whom the wages paid to servants would be a great help, who would be glad to work in such positions as those filled by their English sisters, if when their work were done they could go into the parlor as a friend instead of being consigned to the kitchen and to companionship of the coachman, footman and the scrubbing girl? And knowing such, are there not some who will seek relief to themselves from many of the annoyances of housekeeping, and afford relief to others, by such an experiment as that described? Such experiments proving successful in a few cases, will go far toward improving the character of domestic service, and bring into that service many who now keep aloof from it because public sentiment has set it down as degrading. The true lady will be in no danger of losing her position in society, because she thus helps herself and others, and there can be no disturbance of social circles if the ladies trying the experiment are judicious in the choice of their assistants, directing their labors as one directs an equal, and so treating them that there is no appearance of condescension on her part in receiving them into the parlor, or on their part in superintending and working the positions they assume.—Boston Traveler.

Regard for the Aged.
A little thoughtful attention, how happy it makes the old. They have outlived most of their friends, their early youth. How lonely their hours. Often their partners in life have long filled silent graves; often their children they have followed to the tomb. They stand solitary, bending on their staff, waiting till the same call shall reach them. How often must they think of absent, lamented faces; of the love which cherished them, and the tears of sympathy which fell with theirs, now all gone. Why should not the young cling around and comfort them, cheering their gloom with songs and happy smiles.

Ladies who wear bustles should fasten the thing down, and not meander the streets with a huge bundle bobbing up and down and wriggling from side to side behind. It looks ridiculous, and besides with so many beads and bugles on it, is apt to make a person walking in the rear cross-eyed!

THE REMEDY.
To escape the worthless abominations offered under the title of Flavoring Extracts and Baking Powders, rests wholly with the consumers; they are the ones that have to suffer. Pursue articles you know by experience to be pure. Look upon cheap goods as an evidence of their adulteration and worthlessness, upon those that dealers complain of being too high to keep for sale as an argument in their favor; for good, pure goods can not be sold as cheap as worthless ones, and afford a less profit to manufacturer and dealer.
Dr. F. C. True's Flavoring Extracts and Cream Baking Powder are acknowledged by chemists to be the purest, and the only scientifically prepared articles of their kind in the market, and are now used by a million homes, and daily increasing in popular favor.
